

New Beginnings

Now that most things are getting back to normal, it is time to look at those new beginnings by evaluating your goals and starting the process to reach them. The PA CareerLink® has been assisting people with setting goals and developing a plan to reach them since 2000 when we opened our offices. Our goal is to help people in our community get back into the workforce. We supply a multitude of services to individuals that could assist them in re-entering the workforce after dealing with lay-offs and fears over safely returning to the workforce.

The Private Industry Council of Westmoreland/ Fayette Inc., the Title I Provider at the PA CareerLink® and administers training programs that help individuals acquire new skills for high demand occupations. If you don't possess the skills to secure a sustainable job, they can guide you through the process to obtain those skills from one of our approved training providers. They start by assessing your current skills and work history, as well as your interests. You will complete a basic skills test and attend a brief class on Career Pathways to help you choose the right career for you. They will help you research schools and programs and if eligible you will receive assistance with funding to attend school to gain skills in your selected career field. When you complete your training program we will continue to work with you to secure a job in your new career.

We can assist with job search for those that are skilled by offering free resume and application workshops, prep you for an upcoming interview, offer adult education classes so that you fly through employer testing or take a basic computer class, and we have staff that work directly with employers and can personally hand your resume to them.

Partner programs are for people of all ages and backgrounds. You might be a middle or high school student looking for career guidance or work experience, be in the prime of your career and need a change, retired and looking for part-time work or have barriers such as past legal issues that get in your way- we will do our best to assist you any way that we can.
